

SEC COMMENTS COLLECTION

SECDocket	2015-06 Northern Pass Transmission - Eversource
CommenterName	Larry Twitchell
CommenterCity	Candia
DateReceived	10-02-2017

CommenterWords

As one who lived in the North Country for close to 40 years I appreciate its unique position within the state politically, environmentally and economically. Aside from a few short-term jobs during construction, the North Country gains nothing from this project. The economic impact of Northern Pass on the North Country beyond the construction period is negligible. The environmental impact of Northern Pass will live as long as the transmission line is in place and that impact is all negative and huge.

The North Country, its people, as well as the state's population as a whole stands to gain little or nothing from Northern Pass. The greatest part of any benefits go to Southern New England, Eversource, and the banks. The North Country gets to live with the scar for decades.

Why is this project even being considered? The only reason that comes to mind is GREED. The Site Evaluation Committee must come to the conclusion that Northern Pass is not in the economic and environmental interests of the State of New Hampshire and recommend against any further development of the project.

Thank you.